As the movement to end anti-black racism builds, we show up at this moment as a multi-racial, survivor-led collective poised to amplify the ways in which the movements to end sexual violence and racial violence are reliant upon one another. Survivors know how to transform systems and create a culture of accountability. We are co-creating an agenda that will seed the changes we need.

The Survivors' Agenda will crowdsource the issues, policies, and support that survivors are calling for as a united front. The agenda will be representative of our collective needs and interests and created to be used as a tool to demand that our elected officials and local policymakers show up for survivors in ways they never have before.

Dear [[Friend]],

Last Thursday, we officially launched The Survivors' Agenda, the first-ever crowdsourced agenda that will build power for survivors and shift the conversation around sexual violence. We had an incredible turnout and received some really beautiful feedback. To date, the call has been viewed over 10k times! If you missed it, read the full transcript here and watch the full video here.

This defining moment is pushing people to take a critical look at the impact of white supremacy on their lives and communities, calling for the defunding of the police, and calling for resources to be directed to community-driven solutions for public safety and wellbeing. The Survivors' Agenda aims to ensure survivors are informing, leading, and deeply recognized at this moment.

But we need your voice to help us shape this agenda! Take the survey here.

We are showing up in this moment as a multi-racial, survivor-led collective poised to amplify the ways in which the movements to end sexual violence and racial violence are reliant upon one another. Survivors know how to transform systems and create a culture of accountability.

If you are planning to host a conversation soon with your community, use our Kitchen Table Conversations toolkit to help start that conversation and instructions on how to report back on those conversations to inform the creation of the Survivors' Agenda. These conversations are one of many ways that survivors' voices will inform the Survivors' Agenda.
